Early history. One of the earliest discussions of equal temperament occurs in the writing of Aristoxenus in the 4th century BC. [citation needed] Vincenzo Galilei (father of Galileo Galilei) was one of the first practical advocates of twelve-tone equal temperament. He composed a set of dance suites on each of the 12 notes of the chromatic scale in all the "transposition keys", and published also ...

The Development of Flutes in North America. While approaches to studying the development of flutes in Europe and Asia and in Central and South America have been largely focused on the archaeological record, there is considerable debate as to whether that approach is appropriate (or even useful) for North American flutes. In particular, the apparently sudden appearance of the Native American ...
